

AMERICANS SUPPORT PUBLIC HEALTH

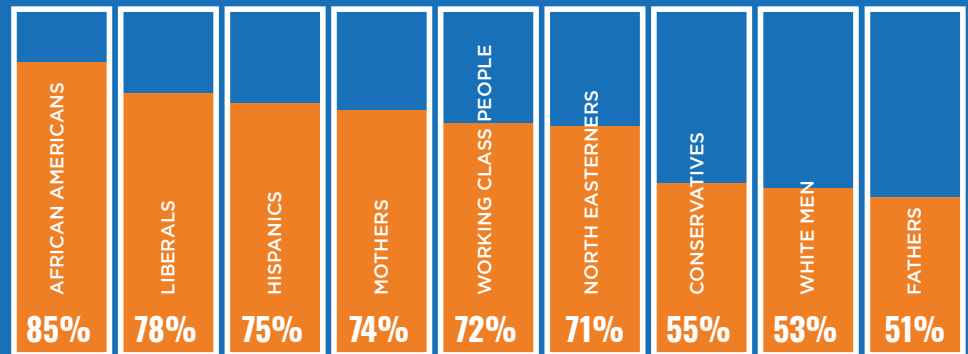

New Survey: U.S. Voters Understand the Vital Role
Public Health Plays in their Community.

89%

of voters believe public health plays
an important role in the health of their community.

Two in three Americans believe every community should enjoy basic public health protections.

STRONG SUPPORTERS

1 IN 5

1 IN 5 VOTERS ARE SOFTER IN THEIR SUPPORT FOR PUBLIC HEALTH

LESS SUPPORTIVE VOTERS

- Men
- Aged 18-54
- White
- "Lean" Democrats
- Republicans
- College-educated
- Fathers
- Wealthy

FOUR PROTECTIONS RESONATE MOST STRONGLY WITH VOTERS

The de Beaumont Foundation commissioned Public Opinion Strategies to conduct a national public opinion poll of 1,000 registered voters, with a special focus on rural Americans, from August 31 to September 7, 2018 the poll covered perceptions of community health and well-being, the role that public health plays, and the services public health departments provide communities.

The de Beaumont Foundation advances policy, builds partnerships, and strengthens public health to create communities where people can achieve their best possible health.

de Beaumont FOUNDATION

deBeaumont.org